In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

And, behold, there was a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow; and for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him; lo, I have told you.

And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy, and did run to bring his disciples word. Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that sleep.

But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; afterward they are Christ's as his coming. Ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead.

If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands which are the figures of the true; but unto heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us.

Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.

Holy, Holy, Holy.

Holy, holy, holy! Lord God Almighty!
Early in the morning our song shall rise to thee;
Holy, holy, holy, merciful and mighty,
God in Three Persons, blessed Trinity!

Holy, holy, holy! all the saints adore thee,
Gazing upon thy golden crowns around the glassy sea;
herb and seraphim falling down before thee,
Which wert, and art, and evermore shall be.

Holy, holy, holy! Lord God Almighty!
All thy works shall praise Thy name, in earth, and sky,
And seas;

Holy, holy, holy, merciful and mighty,
God in Three Persons, blessed Trinity!

RUSSIA'S BASTILE.

The Grim Old Fortress of Sinister Memories in Petograd.

Petrograd's bastille, the fortress of Sts. Peter and Paul, is a huge mass of stone on the bank of the Neva opposite the Winter palace. It is a place of sinister memories.

Within its walls Peter the Great tortured his son Alexis to death. The Princess Tarakanova, imprisoned in a cell which was flooded during an inundation, found rats climbing on her to save themselves from drowning. It was in the fortresses of Sts. Peter and Paul that Catherine II. buried alive the unhappy people who ventured to object to the murder of her husband.

Torture of a more refined nature has been employed upon its prisoners in recent years. Prince Kropotkin tells how the revolutionary Karakoff was kept awake for a week at a time, gauging sitting on either side of him to stir him up when he showed signs of falling asleep. The unhappy man at last acquired the art of springing his leg while he slept so as to delude his guards that he was awake, but they detected the trick. As a result of this treatment Karakoff, when he was at last led out for execution, was in such a state of collapse that it seemed as though his body did not contain a bone unbroken, and the rumor ran that his jailers had killed him in his cell and brought him an India rubber ball for the yard.

Kropotkin himself spent some unhappy years in the fortress in which thick walls were alike covered with hearable. Kropotkin, however, had a happier lot than some, for he was

The Results Of A Blunder

By EDWARD STEWART

"It's too bad."

"I am dreadfully sorry, my dear young lady. It could not be helped."

"I have been counting on this story to give me a literary reputation. You have ruined all these hopes."

"This was ridiculous. The story was below the average."

The truth is that Howkins, the editor and proprietor of the magazine, had no business to go away and leave me a wester trained youngster, in full control. I had hosts of friends, and my mind was absorbed with poetical pleasures. As to my work at the editorial rooms, Howkins had arranged everything before his departure so that there was nothing to do but take the copy for the next issue out of his desk and send it to the composing room. Among other things I sent up a story called "What's It All About?" by Miss Mildred Eaton. I was locking my desk one Friday afternoon preparatory to going into the country till the following Tuesday when a message came down from the composing room that the story "What's It All About?" was incomplete. I called for the copy and found the last two chapters missing.

Here a pretty kettle of fish ransacked the office without success; sent for the author and was informed that she had gone on a trip, no one knew where. What was I to do? Give up my editing to search for a word in a haystack? Not I. My resolution was taken. It was then 2 o'clock. By 4 I could aim the manuscript; by 7 I could write the last chapters and be ready for the 7 o'clock train instead of the 9 o'clock, as I had intended.

My hurried time and anxiety

F. A. Orton and son, had called Monday. They went to fishing in a river, which is running very dry at this time. They succeeded in catching some 50 fine trout, weighing 4 3/4 pounds.

The Farm Bureau meeting at Marian on Thursday evening was the best attended of any of this end of the valley. In the able lecture on seed corn given by the State Foreman L. D. Street Foreman J. T. Hadley

Chasler J. L. Waring, director of the Bank of Owensmouth, had presented from the city of Los Angeles a check for $10,000 for the construction of a bridge across the street, near the J. T. Hadley

Coming Even

With the first evening of deep gloom. Here it is:

The story by Miss Eaton, "What's It All About?" is, judging from its name, what it is: a double entendre intended to be a pun. What principles are conveyed, under the strange edifice probably only students of the introspective school will be able to explain satisfactorily. In this respect the story will excite great interest.

The next was evidently a criticism by some critic who was possibly hurrying, as I had done, to the country and had only sketched the early part of the story, for he pronounced the ending "just what might be expected in this inferior class of work." The third stroke of the penman's style in which "What's It All About?" was written—an easy way of criticizing a story which is too busy to read. Seven critics gave hypothetical explanations of the mystery surrounding the closing chapters in the whole batch of criticisms there was not one which indicated that the story had been slathered by a graceless scamp in a hurry to get away on a pleasure trip.

In view of the attention these criticisms called to the story the author was difficult in securing a publisher for it in book form. It was

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

WHAT IS FRUIT

"AND when ye shall have come into the land, and shall have planted all manner of trees for food, then ye shall count the fruit thereof as uncircumcised; three years shall it be as uncircumcised unto you; it shall not be eaten of."

"But in the fourth year all the fruit thereof shall be holy to praise the Lord withal."

"And in the fifth year shall ye eat of the fruit thereof, that it may yield unto you the increase thereof: I am the Lord your God."—Leviticus 19: 23, 24, 25.

The first season the tree grows it casts out the white, or vinegar acid. The second season the yellow, alcoholic acid is cast out. The third year the blue is expanded and oxygen is produced. The fourth year oxygen is combined with water and red fruit is produced. If there is this fruit oxygen in the blood the lungs can take oxygen out of air, but not without. Oxygen of the blood is male and oxygen of the air is female, of the plant that gives us life.

The above is the only process there is to separate and obtain the pure life substance. My process of ripening honey red is the same, requiring four years. Diseases are caused by some of the vinegar or alcohol acids being retained in the carbo-hydrate of the food. It shuts off the power for increase in vegetable forms and changes over into animal life instead of vegetable life and forms.

Fruit of the fourth year is three or four times as rich as in any other year because it has three or four generations of cells in it which occupy all of the substance, like eggs, bran and water may be used to fill a bucket. Without the three generations of cells the carbo-hydrate is unable to digest water; or make muscle, blood and nerves. When an ingredient of the fruit is absent the liquid disappears as gas and the dried matter that remains is attacked and consumed by animal germs. Heating honey or fruit turns it over to the animal form of life by destroying the generation orders of plant life cells.

When you first sit down to the table to eat, if you take a little honey and dissolve and swallow it slowly, and then a few swallows of cool water, and then eat the raw foods, bread or potatoes without butter, or greasy, you will not suffer for anything, but honey and water for the whole meal. By a teaspoonful of honey you can hydrate (enzymosis) a large volume of water and by a glass of acidulated (hydrated) water you can emulsify a large amount of dry foods, and make acidless foods appetizing.

Fourth year fruit has no flavor or aroma, as is the case with the sixth or seventh year fruit. After the fourth year has been passed the vinegar and alcoholic acids return into the fruit again and disappear as the fruit oxygen. When fruit cells are strong there is no escape of oxygen (aroma and flavor) until the cells are attacked by a special digestive enzyme (ferment). Fruit of the fourth year will keep without rotting a year under the same conditions that the sixth and seventh year fruit would decay and disappear in less than a month's time. The only proper way to test food is to eat it and note the effect on the muscles and temper of the mind 24 hours after. Flavor, aroma, and outside colors are only the oxygen escaping from weakness and decay. Food is not procurable except through reason and knowledge in its culture.

Every change in weather affects the cells of food while growing that finds its responsive effect in the blood the moment the food enters the stomach. When we digest the food we exactly undo the effects which temperature and moisture have developed. Nature food is likened to a ball of yarn that is first wound up and remains for us to unwind to obtain its intense stored up action and power. We are to cultivate a just regard for our food or we cannot regard it. The want of regard is the cause of all of the stomach ailments and the stomach disorder precedes all others.

From the 2nd and 3rd and the 6th and 7th year fruit best obtain only a small amount of fruit, sappy juice but the 4th year fruit yields about one-fourth of its weight in thick, delicious syrup, like honey.

I have just lately produced a new cactus by cross fertilization. The pear, and average from 5 to 7 ounces in weight. Pulp soft, semi liquid, instead of dry and seedy as in common cacti. Nearly as juicy as the lemon, so that bees can use it readily. This season, 1918, a 5-year old plant bore 900 perfect apples, or fruits. The skin is thin as a cherry skin, and seeds are few. The leaves or slabs of the plant as well as the fruit are most nutritious of all foods. The taste isacid, like a mild flavored lemon, and by crushing the leaves and adding to a little honey it is better than strawberries and sugar. Leaves of cactus taken fresh off from the plant is an efficient remedy for the worst diseases. The method of application is to simply eat it as though it were an apple or a melon or eat it in any old way. I have originated and tested many varieties of cacti but this one is THE cactus. A few of the thousand of plants are for sale at $5.00 each for the largest plants; and $2.00 for the medium size; and $1.00 each for the small size plants.

Small size plants are exactly as good as the largest, except that it would require a year longer to bear fruit. All of the plants can be increased 30 to 50 the first season. With a little experience it is not difficult to increase one plant to 1000 in a single year.

A cactus can be grown wherever a rock bush can be grown, and the blossoms are more attractive than roses and the fruit appears like that largest, brightest red apples that hang on the plant six to ten months.

L. C. KIMBALL JR.
ENGAGE IN FRUIT DRYING
INDUSTRY

A new industry for Van Nuys people was assured this week when ground was broken for the first building of the B. and K. Company, on their 10 acre property at the junction of Sherman Way and North Sherman Way.

The members of the new firm are George Beales, well known nurseryman and horticulturist of Van Nuys, L. C. Kimball, Jr., a prominent business man and fruit grower of Owensmouth.

They will embark in the fruit drying business on large scale, and will rush the plant to completion, so as to handle this season's fruit.

The plant, as outlined, will comprise a main warehouse 100x40 feet, a green fruit shed 40x40, a cutting shed 40x75, and large sulphur houses. All the buildings will front on North Sherman Way.

J. A. Caldwell, a Van Nuys contractor, will erect the buildings.

There will be between 4,000 and 5,000 feet of track in the yards, and the plant will be equipped with latest improved drying apparatus to be furnished by the Anderson-Barngrover Company of Stockton.

The plant will represent an investment of about $25,000.

Several hundred people will be employed during the drying season.

Mr. Beales has had 40 years of practical experience in different branches of the fruit business in this state.

Mr. Kimball, who has had a wide business experience, will take an active part in the management of the enterprise. It is a strong combination and will prove a valuable asset to our community.

Mr. Beales, in speaking of the plans of the company, stated that no fruit will be contracted this season, but that it will be bought, delivered at the dryer, at prices to be announced later.—Van Nuys News.

The price of wheat is soaring to all-time records of figures, and it is predicted that there will be no more cheap grain for a long time. It is said that nearly 8 1/2 million bushels of wheat have been destroyed by the war. In view of these conditions, the present time seems very advantageous for engaging in the bee business. With abundant spring rains there should be plenty of feed for the bees all summer. An unusual opportunity to procure an ideal location for an apiary is offered near the Chatsworth reservoir. An absent owner wishes to sell 11.70 acres of land at a price which is a real bargain. The land is contiguous to vast areas of sage and other wild flowers. Nearby orange groves furnish quantities of bee food. If interested, write or call at Gazette office.

"You see, I went to call on a young girl from my home town who is being educated in a private institution for the blind. I had been to see her before, and so I was prepared for the way her companions crowded about me, felt my clothes, my hands and my face and remarked everything I had on, saying, 'How beautiful her hat is—how pretty she looks!' and so on. Now was I surprised when my friend conducted me through the classrooms, pointing out the new work and displaying some fine lacework she had started that morning, quite as though she could see it all for herself!"

"But on this visit, for the first time, I was invited to stay for supper and spend the evening with the girls delighted to see me. I invited and enjoyed the meal, which was served by sighted waitresses in a well lighted dining room. But after that my experience changed. We walked from the dining room into dim halls, and as we mounted the stairs to the sitting room, we walked into utter darkness. I was able to envy my friend, who tripped lightly by my side, while I could only grope my way awkwardly."

"Once in the sitting room I felt for a chair and dropped into it, waiting for the lights to be turned on. But the laughter and the chatter went on unconcernedly about me, and after a few minutes I dawdled upon me that lights were not necessary in an institution for the blind at night; that the sitting room was no darker for the target than that it had been all through the beautiful, sunny day I had enjoyed so much."

"As my eyes grew a bit accustomed to the darkness I could perceive the girls, who had their chairs up around mine and were busy with embroidery and lacemaking as they talked."

"And for the rest of the evening I sat there trying not to let my blindness fret me, not to appear to mind when the girls, in their sympathy, held up to my work for my inspection. That was the time I realized what it really is to be blind."—New York Press.
