Handling a larger volume of business, securing a wider distribution, getting good returns for the product, and making earlier payments than ever before, the California Lima Bean Growers Association closed its seventh year of business Tuesday with a barbecue luncheon at Oxnard which was attended by hundreds of lima bean growers and their families from the southern counties of the state.

Operators of the vehicles mentioned in the section must bring their machines to a stop within not less than ten feet nor more than fifty feet from the nearest rail of the track before the vehicles are backed and listen for approaching trains.

A number of mutual members were given information a while ago by Miss Ruth Wingard and vocal soloists by Miss Grace Grubb and W. E. Bechtelmeier, all of which were well received.

The announcement does not alter the price of the product reviewed in the San Fernando Valley. Statements made by the local canners have been made at this purpose and the peaches would be paid according to the market price by the millers.

Plans have been completed by the San Fernando Valley chapter of the Boy Scouts for a summer vacation and training camp combined for the first time in the history of the organization of the Los Angeles council.

The concert given Thursday evening by the Owensmouth Community orchestra, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, and the participation of the Twilight concert, was a most successful affair.

The orchestra numbers were all excellent. Special numbers added to the program included a number of solo and special numbers added to the program.

A number of matters came up for consideration at the meeting. The appointment of a committee to investigate the proposed holding of a picnic was approved.

The McKoon cannery at Burbank is now working on apocryph. The Lankershim postoffice has been reorganized.

The specifications for the new paving call for an 18-foot roadway with a five-foot graded apron on either side.

Now and then the average Owensmouth man's nerves get all out of kilter. He will get a headache, a tired, worn-out feeling creeps over him and he tells his troubles to the family doctor. Nine times out of ten in addition to the medicine he receives an hour the doctor says "What you need is a change."

TILE DRAINAGE OF ORCHARD

Just as Beneficial and Productive of Fruit as Fertilizer or Potatoes.

The drainage is just as beneficial and productive of results in the average farm orchard as in the field of corn or potatoes. The orchard soil, we find, needs aerating and venting just as any other soil, and tilling beneath the rootlets all the more retentive of needed moisture, no necessary to the fruit in the growing season. It is a writer in Successful Farming, who tells us that in some orchards, the roots of which possess the best of apple, peach or plum. Cultivating the wet soil about the roots of the trees is just as damaging as plowing the wet soil about the roots of corn or potatoes for the time being and certain crops are difficult of eradication in the orchards where it is too wet to work the ground.

None of the orchards at the past have long remained in good, thrifty growing order when planted on poorly drained soil. So many we have known to wither and die after a year on the farm close to the residence for these orchards and have got such poor results there as to be almost worthless. It seems that surface drainage should be sufficient in any way save one. The water should stand on the surface about the tree, but it is that wet, clammy, sticky soil that absorbs the water and holds the water which does the damage. The ideal orchard is one in which the water is kept moving up or down every day in the year. In winter the rain or snow melt runs readily down in underground drains. In dry weather capillary action has-been well established and the soil water is continued to feed the trees from vast storage basins underneath. In the wet, as he heard a shrill, mellow cry echoing through the forest, for it usually had followed soon afterward if a bird from the roost's dusky wings which ended the robin's life.

In his later years West had lost much of his former vigor and was being supplanted for shooting members of peacocks tribe in the days he became a hunter, latter old man still died once to him in 1805.

SPRAY FOR PLANTING TREES

Branches of White Elm or Hackberry Will Keep Together When Forty Feet Apart.

Street or road trees should never be planted closer than forty feet. The branches of white elm or hackberry planted on rich soil at this distance will often topple the plant or ruin the future development of the tree as naturally as possible.

Check Orchard Diseases.

Collect and destroy all succulent and windfall fruit in your orchard. It will check the spread of diseases in your orchard.

SPRAY TO CONTROL INSECTS

Use of Lead Arsenate When 80 Per Cent of Business Elm Fall in Uprad.

It will still be worth while for owners of peach trees to spray for the control of curculio and other insects. The best spray for this purpose is lead arsenate, using one and a half pounds in 50 gallons of water and applying when about 90 per cent of the blossoms have fallen.

GET RID OF WATER SPROUTS

Pruning Off in Spring After Heavy Rubbing Will Save Much Needed Manpower.

After heavy pruning is done in the spring, especially in the case of apple trees, there is a great deal of water sprouts. These may be readily rubbed off with fine sand paper, but if the sprouts which otherwise would go into water sprouts. Getting rid of water sprouts now will save time in pruning later.

TURN ME OVER

Site Should Have No Rock Ledges or Hardpan Over the Surface and Be Well Drained.

The orchard must be on a good site with no rock ledge or hardpan over the surface, well drained and without unusual danger from frost. The trees must have good vitality, without decayed trunks, cankers that girdle the limbs, or weakness that would make good growth impossible; and, finally, the varieties must be good sales as it is practicable to up-graft the trees.

LIME-SULPHUR KILLS SCALE

Use Many Growers Are Careless in Application and Insect Gets Considerable Start.

Concentrated lime-sulphur, one part to eight parts of water, has been used for the control of scale, but too many growers are careless in the application and the scale gets a good start. The other lime-sulphur or a good substitute oil. Besides it is a mistake all that is very effective in one part of water.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmer Stone

Western Newspaper Union

LEWIS WETZEL, "DEATH WIND OF THE DELAWARE"

Many of the great scouts did not become Indian fighters until they were old. Lewis Wetzel started when he killed his first Indian, who he was but thirteen years old. Wetzel was born in Virginia in 1732. His father moved to the present site of Wheeling, W. Va., and was killed there by the Indians before the eyes of his wife. Lewis grew up in a family of hunters and trappers.

One day while he and his brother were working in the woods they were attacked by a bear. Lewis killed the bear and the next instant was hit by a bullet which carried away a piece of his forehead. Both boys were taken captive. That night while the Indians slept, Lewis saw a chance to escape the things which bound him and cut unfastened his bonds.

After the boys had fled for some time they discovered that their captors were torn to shreds. Leaving his brother in hiding, Lewis returned to the Indian camp. He was followed by the stepping sarge, robbed them of two pairs of moccasins and took a cup and some powder and lead.

The next morning the boys were just on their trail and were close upon them. Lewis saw that he was spotted, the boys stepped out of the trail into a clump of bushes, allowing their pursuers to spend their time following. Soon they heard the Indians counting track and again they stepped into the bushes again. The boys were followed by the sarge and returned in safety to their home.

When Lewis Wetzel grew older he crossed over into Ohio and soon became one of the best-known scouts in the West.

Wetzel was called "The Death Wind" by the Delaware Indians because he had killed particularly. More than once a Delaware warrior trembled with fear as he heard a shrill, mellow cry echoing through the forest, for it usually had followed soon afterward if a bird from the roost's dusky wings which ended the robin's life.

In his later years Wetzel had lost much of his former vigor and was being supplanted for shooting members of peacocks tribe in the days he became a hunter, latter old man still died once to him in 1805.

IMPORTANT ORCHARD POINTS

Fruit Growing to be Successful Must Follow Certain Rules and Stick to Them.

It would be quite a find hundreds of farmers in every state who are making more money out of their fruit, handling it in a side line along with crops, poultry, dairy products, or live stock, than they would be if they only discovered a single neighborhood in which the one man who has made a few acres of success by such strategy. As a rule, we hear very little about that kind of fruit growing. It is so much easier to write up the big and spectacular enterprises.

This kind of fruit growing, however, to achieve the best success, must follow methods different from those of the famous horticultural sects. Detailed down to the lowest workable pro- portion is about as follows:

1. Begin with the best orchard.
2. From this determine what varieties to grow successfully.
3. Determine what the local market wants.
4. Plant a relatively high list of varieties, giving due regard to local adaptations.
5. Grow varieties of good quality.
6. Plant enough to make a sufficient farm unit, but not to swamp the locality.

cans very warm they spend most of their time in the shade, until three or four o'clock in the afternoon, when they begin moving toward home, ranging for food along the way. If the weather is not too warm they do a lot of work, but if they fly out of the pen after being fed, the flight feathers in a few days will be so worn that they will have to be replaced.

KILLING OFF BEST CHICKENS
Housewife Makes Mistake in Getting Rid of Cockatrice Because They Are Large.
The housewife who kills off her largest and best cockatrice and puts it in a pot as though it were a chicken, is not so much a poultrywoman as any people think. Often it is the cockatrice that are the most valuable, yet nearly every farm woman thinks it is justified in killing off her largest and best because they are the best of the flock. It is a very hard matter to get rid of and it is a good, vigorous utility cockatrice desirable. Better be certain before you kill the next one.

GIVE OLD FOWLS ATTENTION
Here Intended to Be Sold Should Be Fatened and Placed on Market Soon as Possible.
Just now your greatest attention should be directed toward the care of the old hens. Those that you intend to keep over another year should be given a separate pen where you can give them additional care and a special ration to meet their requirements, but those you intend to sell should be fattened and placed on the market as soon as possible. It doesn't pay to waste time in the culling work.

INJURIOUS SAN JOSE SCALE
Large Orchard Here Being Infested and Owners Must Use Vigorous Means of Control.
The San Jose scale has been very destructive this season in southern California and nearby Indiana, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture. Large apple orchards have been infested, and growers must adopt vigorous measures to get it under control.

RAISE MORE FRUIT IN 1923
Owner of Good Orchard Should Take Precaution to Injure Fewer Fruit in Future.
This is not the time to stop planting and caring for fruit trees. On the other hand, those who are without fruit plants should set out a good supply next year, and the owner of a good orchard or fruit plantation should take every precaution to insure good results in the year to come. Every tree should be cut more fruit than it does now. More can be grown in the garden than has been the case. Do not grow more than can be well cared for and used to advantage. A close plan will reveal for will give better results than two dozen indefinitely cared for.

Reigning Unsatisfactory Fruit.
Unsatisfactory and short-lived plants grown in dairy farms are being re- placed by trees, permanent of course.

Helps Prevent Disease.
Good condition of live stock, obtained by handling out fresh, will go a long way toward preventing disease.

Make Plans for Ordering.
Write down your garden plan for next season ahead. You forget what you wanted, and you

DIFFICULTIES WITH TURKEYS
Hard Work to Keep Flocks From Invading Other Areas.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
One of the greatest difficulties with the turkey growers have to contend with is to keep their flocks from wandering over into areas and invading neighboring farms. To some extent, feeding habits and instincts tend to drive the area over which they range, but even then they often get too far. Who is trouble of this kind occurs, the most effective plan is to drive them by a fence and keep them there until about noon.

It is never better to have a flock of their ranging early in the morning, but by this clock they are usually so far from home as they will get during the day. As soon as the sun has

MARKET SEASON FOR GUINEAS

Letter Part of Summer and Throughout Fall. The time to buy is now.

The marketing season for guinea pigs is during the latter part of summer, and throughout the fall. At this time the demand in the city market is for young birds weighing from one to two pounds each. At about 24 months old guinea pigs weigh from one to 3 1/2 pounds, and at this time they begin making the mistake in demand. At the season advanced the demand for heavier birds.

The usual practice in marketing guinea birds is to place them on the market about six weeks before the market opens and in most markets guinea pigs are sold this way. They appear more attractive with feathers on, and will sell readily. Dressed, the small size will dark color of the skin are likely to be preferable to the petite customer who may be unfamiliar with the bird's excellent eating qualities. For such a customer the rat, however, guinea should be dressed in the same way as common food. Better ask the dealer, before shipping, whether he wants the feathers on or off.

If the feathers are to be left on the birds all that is necessary in preparing for market is to bleed them by severing the principal blood vessels of the neck, allowing them to hang head downward until bleeding is complete.

If the feathers are to be removed it should be done by first severing the brain is placed after severing the blood vessels in the neck. The guinea are loosened by a curative movement of the muscles and can be removed easily.

ECONOMICAL FEED FOR EWES
When Good Legume Hay is Given Along With Beans or Silage Grain Is Not Needed.
For the greatest economy the winter feed of the ewes should consist largely of roughage, hay, and the legumes easily yielding. When good legume hay is given along with an allowance of roots or silage, no grain is needed until about a month before lambing time. The aim should be to bring the ewes to lambing time in vigorous condition, thus insuring a good milk flow for the newborn lambs.

SPRING CLEANING IN FAVOR
Generally Good Plan to Allow Dropping Boards to Stand in Sunlight for a Time.
Spring cleaning is a well worn. The floors have been in the house long enough during the winter and even though the dropping boards have been renewed at regular intervals, the birds are generally in poor condition when they are brought more range at other seasons. It is a good idea to give the dropping boards and roosts to stand in the sunlight for a time after thoroughly cleaning them.

AGRICULTURE FOR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

At a meeting of Farm Bureau representatives from the California counties of the Tehachas, held in San Diego recently, a strong resolution was unanimously adopted calling the attention of the Board of Regents of the University of California to the need of an agricultural college of university grade in Southern California. The resolution was pointed out that the value of the agricultural products produced in Southern California exceeds that of many important agricultural states of the United States. It was further shown that many of the agricultural problems in Southern California are unique to this section and do not exist in other parts of the state. The popular demand for agricultural instruction of a university grade was indicated by calling the attention of the Board of Regents to the very large number of Southern California students enrolled at the present time at Berkeley and at Davis, and especially at the Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis. The resolution urged that such an institution be established as soon as possible and that it be made a part of the present Southern Branch, although not necessarily located on the same campus.

Following the adoption of the resolution, a motion was passed providing for the election of one representative from each of the seven counties and the appointment by Chairman H. R. Peters of Sgt. Benjamin A. Jones to constitute a general committee of thirteen to promote the subject.

THIS FOR THE BOYS

Here are a few words for the boys of Owensmouth. If you don't read them, then do him the kindest to read them to him. The boys are going to get a lot of hard bumps in the next few years. They are harder on you than they really are, and the reason that they see harder is that they parent you. They are taking the bumps for you—showering you against them. This happens in all past generations, is happening now, and in the next generation, when you are a parent, you'll be taking the bumps for your children. As you know, you'll become hardened to knocks. It is just like going barefoot—at first the gravel and twig will hurt the tender feet, but you soon get used to it, and by the time the dress is on, you can't feel the rough road without feeling any pain. So don't get discouraged. Keep your feet that as you take the bumps to develop your muscle. It also means that you can't get used to "being you out," to develop your courage and your resources to enable you to handle power when you do know what responsibility really means.

ILLINOISIAN PLAN MAMMOTH REUNION

Are you one of the 200,000 Sockers (of the Illinois band) in Southern California? Then this is the mammoth reunion of the American Legion, July 28, 1923, Blythe Park, Long Beach.

Will he make it the largest and best ever held! The loyal Illinoisian of all our Sockers are invited. From over 200 towns they will come to see you. To thousands they will rally for old timer's sake. County regatta open all day. Barges, boats, coffee, basket dinners (for you can buy dinner there), program of music and song. The Indiana band will rally. Henry J. Brubaker will preside and will give the words. Here is your opportunity to see and tell all the other Sockers about it. Talk, phone, write. The Indiana band will rally. Henry J. CALL PENNSYLVANIANS TO BEACH PICNIC

All who ever lived in the Keystone State are invited to a great picnic all day Saturday, July 21, in Blythe Park, Long Beach. Come as early as you can and spend the day with friends. There will be a county regatta and headquarters to you can get the old neighbors even with thousands present. There will be a program, but the main purpose will be to have a good time and to meet your friends from all over Southern California. We will try to see all the visitors from the old home state as well as our residents so as to make this the greatest picnic in our history. Bring your baskets well filled or you can secure your dinner at the park. Coffee will be served free to all who bring the souvenir badge. Each one who brings this picnic is added to the good will fund. Our success is up to you. Only through you can we reach the people. Further information may be had of C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies, Continental National Bank, 901 South Main street, Los Angeles, California 1923, or Irwin E. W. McCrea, 203 E. 2nd St., Los Angeles.

OWENSMOUTH PEN POINTS

Rosita reports a big wheat crop this year. She'll also produce a big crop of wheat next year. You can't blame the weather for being so good. No matter what it does, growers will start counting. A man has a garage account at a grocery and a gasoline station, but has enough money to settle only one bill. Guess who waits on his pay. Every time some Owensmouth men look into a mirror they imagine they see a hero. These are the days the boys stand a vacation and then get mad when he returns because they want better while at home. The best way to improve a job which is to take out the lettuce and insert some ham. If you see an Owensmouth boy in a suit studying during vacation, it's time to call in the doctor. Cornelius Yanderhulr, Jr., has lots of money, and plans to start a newspaper in Los Angeles. If he starts it'll need lots of money. In Europe they fight in the summer because the heat makes them fight to keep warm. It looks like the coming generation is going to have at least one big problem to solve, and that's how to get a man's head on a can opener. Henry Ford says he did not say that he would not be a candidate for president. He seems to be developing some ideas about running for a politician. A runaway horse causes trouble that it soon over, but a runaway couple causes trouble that outruns a life-time.

RABIES

Considerable confusion exists at the present time in regard to the matter of rabies. May we ask that the public take note of the following statement regarding the present facilities for rabies work and Pasteur treatment. The county maintains, either directly or indirectly, a laboratory service at Whittier, Pomona, Menlo Park and Alhambra. It also receives specimens daily at the central office, 203 North High street, Los Angeles, except on Sundays. We especially ask that the physicians report the people who present their heads for examination to the local laboratory in their district. In regard to Pasteur treatment, this work, formerly taken care of prior to July 1 by the State Board of Health, is now being administered by the physicians at the Los Angeles Hospital, 1100 Main street, Los Angeles. These treatments are arranged for directly at the hospital—J. L. Penney, M. D., County Health Officer.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmer Scott Watson
G. Watson Newspaper Editor.
TOM HIGGINS' GREATLY FIGHT WITH THE INDIANS
Tom Higgins was a noted Illinois ranger during the War of 1812. One morning near Hills he had assisted Tom's company and killed several of them. As they fled to the fort, Higgins started laughing, saying that he would get at least one Indian before he retreated. He went his Indian, but just as he was preparing to mount his horse the savage Higgins, who was lying on the ground wounded, called out to him: "You won't leave me to the Indians, will you, Tom?" Higgins went to the aid of the man from Tom's band and dashed toward him. "I will have to try to crawl to the fort, Higgins," said Tom, "and I will stay here until the morning." As Higgins crawled away, Higgins ran to another direction to avoid the approaching Indians away from his wounded comrade. In a few minutes he was surrounded by the savages and they wounded him in the leg. Higgins was lying on the ground, bleeding the fort when three Indians ran up before him. The other two men, the ranger fell, wounded for the second time.

Olives and radishes are palatable to us, and others of vegetables. The radishes of a medium of the imagination carved as the figures.

DO YOU LIKE ONIONS?

The onion is one of the most wholesome of our vegetables. The onion that we serve them in various ways.

The onion is nothing to the nerves, a sleep producer, affords a tonic of the various membranes and is a fine antiseptic.

A stuffed onion is another very useful one. The onion size of medium size to be chosen for this dish— as large as one's appetite for them permit and then take and the centers.

Onion Sandwiches—Those who enjoy the onion pleasing to the taste will enjoy a slice prepared with French dressing for a filling for a sandwich.

Onion Relish—Take one large onion, grate, add one-half cupful of celery juice, grate the celery and press out the juice.

Two Cardinal Errors: He who imagines he can do without the word deceives himself much; he who thinks he would want more than him is still more mistaken.

A WOLLOPER

By A. W. PEACH

(Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Tom!" "Oh, it must be he!" she cried. She looked into the eye of the man who stood at the door...

Outside, she said hastily: "Come in here. Mother has a case on her hands. A girl has come here with a man's address, a slip of paper and the address book she had, and we never heard of him. She's half French and wet and lousy--and pretty, too. Come in and see if you can't tell her what to do. Oh, you men!"

"Tom went into the little office where Mrs. Langton, better known to her happy family of roomers as 'mother Mrs.', held her court.

The wanderer who had come in out of the stormy night, drifting in from the wide sea of humanity, was certainly an appealing little figure.

Tom's heart, with the instinct of the street and generous, went out to her at once.

Mother had handed him the slip of paper. The girl spoke quickly to him. "Oh, it must be right! You men--you men--I am certain." Her fair cheeks burned with a faint rose color.

"He said he would be here--and I trust him!" He looked at the paper in his hand and then at her with a smile. "You have come to 1815 Third street. I imagine you should have gone to 1815 Third street on the other side of the city."

"Oh, I see, then I will--" She started to rise, but stood weakly only a moment.

"My dear child, you are tired out. You might telephone Tom, and have her friend call for her," Mother had suggested.

Mary saw by Tom's face that he did not have pleasant news when he returned. "Your friend has been called away on business and may not be back for a week."

"Then you can stay right here with us," Mother had said quickly. Tom returned to the lounge room to resume his reading, but the wistful little face of the girl lingered, and he was glad to have Mary with her impetuous tongue.

"There's something funny about all this, Tom, just the same. That fellow must have met her last summer up in that hill town, but you would think he would have taken to her."

"Mary, don't ask me to account for the ways of my fellowmen," Tom said smiling. "As far as I am concerned, I hope her friend never will show up."

"Oh, how heartless!" her eyes flashed. "Oh, how, you aren't heartless after all, Tommy dear!"

It was good-natured rivalry, but it soon became serious for him. He learned that her name was Alvia Hepburn, under Mother Mrs.' care blossomed like some shy mountain rose during the next days.

He took her to various places about the city, and she went into his life, the spirit of a child. At the same time, he hundreds of little ways, he saw that she was a woman with a mind that was not unwarmed by bitterness or grief.

"Oh, Tommy, please take me somewhere one more," her sweet voice pleaded with a certain wistfulness that troubled him.

"That's just what I'll. Her paper's gone." Her dark head bent beneath him to study the list of the evening's announcements.

He had all he could do to gather a wistful frantic desire to either her close to him, tighter in his arms. But he checked the desire, remembering.

"When he returned from work that afternoon he went to his room, but opened the door at the sound of energetic fists thumping upon it. He opened the door and found Mary facing him with accusing eyes.

"Tommy, you are an awful liar! You told a wolloper that I wasn't here, isn't my chap rooming at 1815 Third street?"

"Good!" Tom sank into a chair. "Then he said quietly: 'Yes, I told a wolloper. I had to, Mary, if I was to make out then with that little girl in the condition she was in, lost and lonely in this thundering big place among strangers, why--why you can see!'"

"At Mary's side he went on. "But it's given satisfaction. Now I am in over my sock."

"Well, she's down in the office today. You'd better go and explain, but I'm thankful I haven't your job," Mary said.

"I want to be found her, he talked to her, telling her all, and, lastly, of his love for her."

She turned and rubbed, and he was conscious of a happy face, than of arms that reached toward him.

"Tommy, Tom, glad you are, and, Tommy, dear, I'm glad I went. I was in nobody's world! And this, but I was to tell him I didn't love him, but I suppose she--you? It was I who was to make you love me if I had--"

"He?" he repeated, and finished his thought with a smile more appropriate than any.

SHOULD NOT BE FORTGOTTEN

Services Rendered by Hayes Salomon Were Invaluable in the Fight Against Inflation.

It is unlikely that one person in a thousand had ever heard of the name of Hayes Salomon, a figure of importance in the financial world, until one who has been strangely mentioned in our article. Hayes Salomon was a Polish Jew banker in America, and Philadelphia who financed and backed the new United States in their fight for self-government. His services have been ignored for nearly 100 years, his name, although appearing in the encyclopedias and in President Madison's correspondence, is not mentioned in congressional records, also being mentioned in a few histories, positively false ones. Hayes Salomon was born in Lissa, Poland, in 1787. He came to America in 1792 and was identified with the cause of American independence. He was in Philadelphia when the British on a charge of espionage, and although a prisoner, because he became an agent of Robert Morris and succeeded in obtaining large sums from Holland and France for the conduct of the American war. Salomon landed $200,000 of his own money for the patriot cause, and in 1793 he had $1,000,000 of his bond not been returned. In addition he supplied funds to Jefferson, Madison, Randolph, and other patriot leaders. Hayes Salomon died at the age of forty as a Philadelphia citizen, leaving a widow and two small children. His papers and other documents showing the government's obligation to him, and his services in following the occupation of Washington by the British in 1783.

Orchard Information

SPRAY FOR EFFECTIVE LEAF-CURL UR In Order to Be Effective Leaf-Curler Must Be Applied While Buds Are Dormant.

Last spring peach leaf-curler was prevalent in the orchards and did a great deal of damage. Some who had sprayed their trees were badly disappointed in their results.

"In order to be effective against curl the spray must be applied when the buds are absolutely dormant," says W. E. Bechtelheimer, after "When the buds begin to swell, the bud scales are slightly separated and the parasites which cause the curl can grow into the tender bud scales."

"The remedy from spraying his peaches at the proper time will be to apply the spray when the buds are dormant, which has been found to be as effective in controlling both leaf-curler and scale as the spraying applications. The weather must also be favorable and the other farm work is out of the way. Leaf-spraying may be started at the very first of the month of fall. Leaf-spraying is to be used when it is not possible to spray. If curl alone is to be fought, it is best to spray in the fall."

Dormant Spraying With Lime-Sulphur the strength used may be 1 to 5. Only one application of the dormant spray is necessary whatever made in the spring or fall, although regular treatments should be applied as usual. The spraying should be carefully done so that all the buds are thoroughly coated with the lime-sulphur.

DORMANT WASH FOR INSECTS Lime-Sulphur Has Given Almost Uniformly Successful Results in Various Tests.

The cheapest, most effective, and most widely used dormant wash, lime-sulphur wash. It has given almost uniformly successful results through many experimental tests in many states. Lime-sulphur wash is made by mixing lime and sulphur together. It can be purchased in concentrated form under various trade names, in various sizes. One gallon contains one and a half gallons of a clear, reddish brown liquid.

In the liquid wash, in commercial lime-sulphur it merely needs to be diluted with water seven or eight times, or as indicated on the label of the container, and sprayed on the trees. Lime-sulphur wash can also be homemade either in a diluted form ready for use or in a concentrated form that must be subsequently diluted. It is usually the cheapest by the prepared material.

SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPERS

The evening meal on Sunday night is usually a light one. This is the time when the men of the family tend to do many culinary things which they enjoy and such knowledge is often valuable when the wife and mother is ill or convalescing.

The making of a paté, a fish, or a simple, but the handiest variety of spiced beef, will testify that it is often served to the mother's aid.

Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France, recently wrote Legionnaire endorsing the Legion's campaign to raise a fund to provide for the decoration of 25,000 graves of war dead overseas each Memorial Day.

"This delicate and kindly thought of the American Legion in assuming the responsibility for the appropriate decoration of the graves of the American soldiers in France has received the universal grateful approval of the families, relatives and friends of the lost ones," Ambassador Herrick stated. "It is an assurance of our warmest and most sincere sympathies for the Legionnaires."

Special messages of approval from the campaign have been received by the Legion from General Pershing and Secretary of War Weeks.
